

[MUSIC PLAYING]

Sequencing doesn't just give us information about the virus. It can also inform vaccine trials, and it can guide therapeutic design. It's important that we know that our vaccines are safe and effective, not only against the predominant variant in circulation, but also safe and effective against emerging variants of concern.